Villa Obsidiana

VILLA 400 m²

Nuestra arquitectura ha sido considerada como una arquitectura textil, donde las estructuras no tienen columnas y por el contrario, se sostienen a través de un tejido como una canasta. Este enfoque tejido, vinculado a lo textil, tiene todo que ver con el legado ancestral de las comunidades nativas que al tejer construyeron sus propias narrativas e interpretaciones del entorno; detrás de las estructuras arquitectónicas también está la mano, la mano que teje al construir, todo lo hacemos manualmente, de forma artesanal.

-ROTH

Our architecture has been considered as textile architecture, where the structures do not have columns and on the contrary, are supported in a woven form, like a basket. This woven approach, linked to the textile, has everything to do with the ancestral legacy of the native communities that in weaving, built their own narratives and interpretations of the environment; behind the architectural structures there is also the hand, the hand that weaves when building, since we do everything manually, handcrafted.

Esperamos que de la conjunción de estas redes, de inteligencia vegetal, animal y humana, surja una idea armoniosa que nos permita establecernos en ese entorno temporalmente sin destruir lo preexistente, para cocrear espacios de convivencia y elevación.

-ROTH

We expect that from the conjunction of these networks, of plant, animal and human intelligence, a harmonious idea will emerge that will allow us to establish ourselves in that environment temporarily without destroying what was pre-existing, to co-create spaces of coexistence and elevation.
